Instructions for InfoStat Spreadsheet:

Click the tab at the bottom of this sheet to see the InfoStats spreadsheet for the conference.

This sample Excel Spreadsheet provides AMEX Specialists and Sales Directors with important information about the companies that participated in the Prospectors & Developers Conference that was held in Toronto in March 2006: It tells you which companies met the $2.00 minimum stock price and $50 million minimum market capitalization required by the AMEX listing guidelines. For the purposes of an initial contact with a prospect company, price and market cap are critical. Absent those two standards, a company is unable to even make application for listing.

Since PDAC is a trade show, our spreadsheet will show a Booth number, a stock symbol, the company name, stock price in Canadian and US dollars, market cap in Canadian and US dollars, a space to jot down notes on your conversation, and a color key that will designate which companies' stock prices are above $2.00 and which companies fall between $1.99 and $1.00. We also color code those companies that are already listed on the AMEX. Companies listed on the NYSE are not prospects and are clearly marked "NYSE."

The balance of companies that fall below $1.00 will be listed but will not have specific price and market cap numbers although we will have checked every company participating in the market cap numbers although we will have checked every company participating in the conference.

Sort the Spreadsheet to Suit Your Needs:

The Trade Show Organizer will provide you with an alphabetical list of all conference attendees with booth numbers but that only helps you find one needle in the haystack. Our Spreadsheet allows you to see a number of things at a glance:

Click any sort button at the top of a column to use any of our pre-coded sorts. You can create your own custom sorts by following the procedure below.

How many companies qualify on stock price (and most likely market cap) guidelines:

To sort by U.S. stock price:

Highlight the entire Spreadsheet

Click Data

Click Sort

Select the appropriate sort criteria, in this case: PR US (descending)

Hit enter.

The Spreadsheet will sort showing the company with the highest stock price and descend to the lowest. In other words, all the companies with stock prices of $2.00 US and above will show up first. They are color-coded blue. Those that fall below $2.00 US will be color-coded green. AMEX listed companies are color coded yellow and will be interspersed among them.

Start Making Contacts:

Its time to start walking the trade show floor. To sort the Spreadsheet by Booth number:

Highlight the entire Spreadsheet

Click Data

Click Sort

Select the appropriate sort criteria, in this case: BTH (descending)

Hit enter

The Spreadsheet will sort showing the companies in order of booth number. Those companies above $2.00, between $1.99 and $1.00, and AMEX listed companies will all be immediately identifiable by their appropriate colors and you will have the basic information you need to approach company representatives about their interest in an AMEX listing.

Benefits - InfoStats is a Targeting Tool:

Time is money. It may be a 4-day conference, but you can probably cover all the companies above $2.00 US in a day, and you might want to stay on for a few hours on day 2 to make contact with companies that have a good chance of reaching $2.00 US in the near future. Then, if you choose to stay for the balance of the conference, spend it in one-on-one meeting with prospects you've already made and initial contact with, and who have expressed interest in the AMEX.

Troubleshooting and Other Information:

If you sort and the list is out of order, it is possible you didn't highlight the entire Spreadsheet before you proceeded with the Sort sequence. Try again.
